Chicago, Oct. 31.—[Special]—Wheat, trading and feeling rather firmer, 1/4 prices held above closing figures yesterday. Trading centered chiefly May delivery, for which there was bid buying at times by Eastern representatives. Market opened about 1/4 higher than yesterday's closing, advanced 1/4@1/2 more, then receded 1/4; recovered some, again fluctuated, closed about 1/4 higher for December, 1/2 for May, than yesterday. Premium for May over December was rather increased to-day 1/4@1/2.

The feeling prevailing was firm on futures owing to limited offerings, May was sold freely by long. First trades were at 1/4@1/2 advance, the market afterwards selling up 1/4@1/2, bid off 1/4, rallied some and ruled steady, closing a shade better for May 1/4 near futures 1/4 lower. Oats, moderately active with firmer tone, does for May advanced 1/2; strength due, in a measure, to the firmer tone of the corn market, with a fair demand from shorts and moderate offerings. On bulge selling increased, and for urgent buyers had been filled up, but receded 1/4, and the market closed steady. Mess pork—Only moderate business was transacted.

The feeling was firm and prices ruled 1/4@1/2 higher and closed steady at out-of-the-market figures.

A BANK PRESIDENT

Gives His Views of the Coming Prosperity of Virginia.

On Wednesday evening, says the Staunton Vindicator, learning that there was a party of Western manufacturers at the Virginia Hotel on a prospecting tour in this section of Virginia, a representative of the Vindicator called there to get their views about the era of progress which is now prevailing here. He found the party to consist of Messrs. L. Link, of Rushville, Ind., president of the Rush County National Bank; Noble Brann, lumberman, the largest stockholder in the Rushville School Furniture Company, in which Mr. Link is largely interested; Geo. S. Megec, secretary and treasurer of the company, and M. Nolan, of the firm of Nolan, Madden & Co., manufacturers of tile and brick machines at Rushville, and a stockholder and director in the Rushville School Furniture Company. They were Western business men, typical representatives of the go-ahead people of that section of the country.

"What do you think of the boom we are having in Virginia?" asked the Vindicator representative of Mr. Link.

"Oh," said he, laughing, "you people down here haven't had any boom yet to speak of. Wait till next spring and you will see one. You are new to the rapid growth of a country, and because you see towns located and lots selling at high prices, you think that the end of the world has come. You have got the finest country here in the world, and what is more, you have got everything else added to it. Your 'boom,' as you call it, ought to be greater than it is, for, you see, you had got the bulk of the work done before any booming was started. You had your country built up already."

"Out West, you see, that isn't the case. The trouble out there is that you start a town in a section where the farming country isn't built up, and the town grows faster than the country. Here you've got a fine, rich farming country, thickly settled and far ahead of any town building that you may do for a long time to come. The only wonder to us is that you were so long finding out how to build up and improve your country, and how little of it has been done. Now that you have taken it up, it is so new that you think you are going a hundred miles an hour, and I don't suppose it will do any harm to let you think you are."

"How came you to turn your eyes towards this section to manufacture in?" was asked Mr. Link.

"Well, you see, up North, especially in the East, the people have grown rich doing the manufacturing for your people of the South, and we believed that the time had come, and you people of the South showed by your spirit that it had come, for the South to have its manufactures located right among its own people. If a man wants to make an axe heve he don't take the sapling up out of the woods and carry it two or three hundred miles to get a man to cut it and dress it for a heve—he just cuts and dresses it right in the woods where he finds it. That's what the Southern people are going to do hereafter. They are going to dress their own helves right in their own woods where they cut the sapling, and we are here with our money and our labor to join in the business with them."

"There is a big reason for what is going on in your State. The time and the conditions have come when the manufacturers have got to get nearer to the raw material and to the new consumers that have their homes in the South. That is the big, round reason, and these lot speculations are flies on its surface that have been hatched out by the prosperity. It will not be long before the boomer will give way to the man with the overalls on, who brings permanent wealth with him wherever he goes. The Southern country is the coming country of the world."
